Programme Overview

The MSc International Management programme aims to give you a greater understanding and broader knowledge of what managers do and what it means to become an effective manager in virtually any discipline across our globalised workplace. The programme is designed to help you enter the workplace, with competency in theoretical models but also provides you the opportunity to develop practical skills in the core management functions.

Aims of the Programme

The MSc International Management programme aims to reflect the breadth of subjects and general educational aims of the Business School, according to which all programmes of study enable students to become competent practitioners in their chosen field, promote critical and evaluative thinking and develop an understanding of the opportunities and uncertainties characterising the contemporary global business environment in the 21st century workplace.

This programme aims to develop your broad knowledge and understanding of organisations, the global context in which they operate and how they are managed.

The specific aims of the programme, which draw on the QAA Subject Benchmark Statement for Business and Management (2015), are to:

- Develop a breadth and depth of knowledge about organisations, their management and the changing context in which they operate
- Develop the ability to apply knowledge and understanding of business and management concepts to complex issues in a systematic manner.
- Develop a range of transferable skills and attributes (including analytical skills, communication skills and self-management) which are highly appropriate to a career in business and/or organisational life

Programme Structure

The tables below provide a list of the modules that make up your programme.

Each module is worth a specified number of credits: you can take a combination of core and compulsory modules enabling you to cover key subject knowledge. Some programmes have option modules which enable you to develop your own interests.

Your programme requires a certain number of credits. The number of option modules you can take depends on the number of core and compulsory modules and this is also influenced by the requirements of the regulatory requirements for professionally accredited programmes. Some programmes also have pre and co-requisites, and these are included in individual module information.

Your learning will be led by the latest research, and modules can change periodically to reflect developments in the discipline.

If we have insufficient numbers of students interested in an option module, it may not be offered. If an option module will not be run, we will advise you as soon as possible and help you choose an alternative module.

The core and compulsory modules available on your programme are as follows:

Part I

The programme may be completed on a full-time (12 months) basis. The first nine months of the programme involves taught study, across two semesters. The final three months will be dedicated to the dissertation.

The dissertation allows students to complete an extended systematic inquiry into an appropriate management topic (e.g., an international or global issue managed by an organisation). A range of methodologies, including undertaking a systematic review of literature, and engaging in empirical research or deploying an action learning / action research approach may be used to complete the dissertation.

In the following description, the term “module” is taken to mean a discrete component of the programme with its own learning outcomes and assessment requirements. All modules are at Masters Level.

The programme consists of:

Core modules worth 52.5 ECTS (105 CATS)
 Compulsory modules worth 30 ECTS (60 CATS)
 Optional modules worth 7.5 ECTS (15 CATS)
 The total value of the modules is 90 ECTS (180 CATS).

The Business School provides all modules.

Learning and Teaching

Your overall workload consists of class contact hours, independent learning, and assessment activity, with each ECTS credit taken equivalent to 20 hours of student effort. While your actual contact hours may depend on the option modules you select, the information available on our webpages give an indication of how much time you will need to allocate to different activities.

When not attending lectures, seminars and other timetabled sessions you will be expected to continue learning independently through self-study. Typically, this will involve reading journal articles and books, working on individual and group projects, undertaking research in the library, preparing coursework assignments and presentations, and for other types of assessments and examinations.

How we'll assess you

Your programme provides you with opportunities to test your understanding of the subject informally before you complete the formal assessments that count towards your module mark. Each module normally contains at least one piece of practice or formative assessment for which you receive feedback.

Formative assessments are developmental, and any results do not count towards your module mark, but they are an important part of your learning.

Summative assessments usually take place at the end of each module, although some may have interim assessments throughout. Assessment methods might include written examinations and a range of coursework assessments such as essays, reports, portfolios, performance, presentations and projects for example. The marks from summative assessments count towards your module mark.

Staff involved in delivering the different elements of the programme

You will be taught by an experienced teaching team whose expertise and knowledge are closely matched to the content of the modules on your programme. The team includes senior academics, professional practitioners with industry experience, demonstrators and technical officers.

Postgraduate research students who have undertaken appropriate training may also contribute to the teaching of seminars if their research specialism is directly related to the topic of the module and may also be involved in practical classes, project work and field trips. All contributions will be carried out under the supervision of the module leader.

Fees

What your fees pay for

Your tuition fees pay for the full cost of tuition and standard exams.

Extra costs you may experience

Accommodation and living costs, such as travel and food, are not included in your tuition fees. There may also be extra costs for retake and professional exams.

Depending on the nature of your programme, you may be able to choose modules which may have additional costs, such as field studies, travel overseas or industrial placements which will change the overall cost of your programme. Details of these costs can be found in module information.

The following programme-related costs are not included in your fees:

Type	Details
Calculators	Where a calculator is required, all Casio Calculators are allowed but they must be Non-Programmable, Scientific models. More information is available in the Examination Regulations https://www.southampton.ac.uk/studentadmin/assessment/assessment-overview/exam-regulations.page
Stationery	You will be expected to provide your own day-to-day stationery items, e.g. pens, pencils, notebooks, etc. Any specialist stationery items that you may need will be specified in the relevant module profile.
Textbooks	Where a module specifies essential texts, the Library will identify the optimal option(s) to support the module via the course Reading List. This may include e-books (ideally with unlimited concurrent usage) or a digitised chapter extract, supported by a limited number of print books (where available). You may prefer to buy your own copies for high demand titles.
Printing	In most cases, written coursework such as essays and projects are submitted online. However it may be necessary to submit a hard copy of some projects, business projects and dissertations. The costs of printing a hard copy for submission of such work will be your responsibility. You will also have to cover the cost of photocopying.
Hardware	The University provides publicly available workstations with software and some are available via iSolutions, but otherwise you will need to purchase.

Academic support

The Student Hub is your first point of contact when it comes to seeking support. The team will answer your questions or concerns about your wellbeing, fees and funding, accommodation and visas. The team will help make sure you receive the support you need, guiding you to further support services where required.

One of the most important people you will meet while you are a student at University of Southampton Delhi is your Personal Academic Tutor, who will be allocated to you for your arrival at the University and who is normally a member of academic staff in your own or a closely related subject area. Your Personal Academic Tutor will offer one-to-one support and advice throughout your time at the University and will support you in your studies or with other issues you may have. You can find out more via our webpages:
